Summary: (machine translated) forest canyon
Hydrology:
Access: (machine translated) Leave the Italian A 10 (Genoa - Nice) at the Arma di Taggia exit (about halfway between Imperia and Ventimiglia). Then take the SP 548 up the valley of the Argentina towards Triora. After about 16 km you will pass through the small village of Agaggio. About 400 m after the village you reach the bridge over the Boetto (With some houses further along the road). Since here at the edge of the SP 548 practically no possibility is opened for a proper parking of the car, one drives before the bridge the concreted road on the right steeply up and parks beside the cemetery. If one has a second vehicle available for a conversion, one can drive with this about 500 m further on the SP 548 and then a narrow private road as far as possible up to Grattino.
Approach: (machine translated) Go back down from the cemetery to SP 548 and continue on it to the houses on both sides of the road. At the last house on the right, a dirt road goes up in a northerly direction to a concrete water tank. Passing it on the right, we follow the following path in serpentine upwards. We then see another water tank on the left. The path always runs relatively close to the edge of the valley that the Boetto has ditched. It goes up and up and finally we meet the tarred road that crosses from Grattino. However, we don't go all the way up to the road, but a few meters before we take the dirt road that goes to the right (NNO) in a roughly horizontal way. After a while we pass some houses with vineyards around, we go on and come to two uninhabited houses with a small flat area a little above. From here a path enters the sparse woods and brings us to the streambed of the Boetto.
Tour: (machine translated) Canyon is fairly open, offers some jumps and slides, but is otherwise underwhelming; emergency egress possible almost everywhere
Return: (machine translated) Before or after the road bridge, go out to the left and to the cemetery.
