Résumé: (traduction alternative) One of the most beautiful and varied aquatic lime canyons in the area; clean water the canyon is located in the Bellunese Dolomites National Park, where canyoning is officially not allowed (is only tolerated); many ticks at the access; protection sufficient; several narrows and possible jumps; small tip: campsite+pizzeria "Sarathei" at Lago di Santa Croce (about 40min. distance) (www.sarathei.it)
Hydrologie:
Accès: (traduction alternative) Coming from Belluno, head towards Agordo and continue on the SS203 into the Cordevale Valley. After the village of Mas comes the village of Peron. About 4Km after Peron, along the Torrente Cordevale, on a long straight left there is a large picnic area with camper pitches. Opposite is the house of the Comando Stazione Forestale "C. se Candaten". From here continue for 1.2km until you reach a forest road on the left by a dilapidated house. Here you enter the forest until you reach Torrente Cordevale (here are also nice places to sleep, which are a bit secluded). This parking lot is much better than the "old" one at the picnic area, because it is relatively shielded.
Approche: (traduction alternative) From the parking lot you cross the Torrente Cordevale and go south. It is relatively obvious where to go into the woods on the other side of the river, because in front of it there are high slopes that you can not climb. At the first opportunity where the embankment is lower, you go into the forest (during our walk 14.8.2023 there was also a cairn at the embankment). In the forest you will find an obvious path that is also marked with red markings. Follow the path southwards until you reach the exit of Val Fogare (after about 15 minutes from the parking lot). Cross the Fogare and after about 20m go up the slope and meet the trail that from now on goes uphill. After about 330m at 480m, instead of following the path that goes straight on, take a hairpin bend and continue along the path that goes steeply uphill from here on. During the ascent, you will come across a stone manderl, a wall with iron railings and a trail marker. After several meters of altitude, it suddenly becomes flatter. Here you have a beautiful view into the valley and the canyon. For the further flat path above the canyon, it is better to wear a helmet. The partly heavily damaged railing says more than a thousand words. From here about 20min. without difficulty follow the path to the stream / entry at about 640m (ticks do not forget ;-))

Tour: (traduction alternative)

The Fogare inferiore is certainly one of the most beautiful and varied canyons in the National Park. Without a long stretch of path there are several steps that can be rappelled or jumped. Some narrow passages, a grotto in the middle of the gorge and the green shimmering water in the pools make the canyoning heart beat faster. The belay stations are not the newest anymore but still usable and well placed. Due to the only 4.2Km² large catchment area, one normally has no problems rappelling in the water. The canyon should not be underestimated because of its narrows! After the last cut passage comes in the stream a small open wall. After that the last meters are downclimbed. Exit at about 460m below the water channel.

Val Fogarè is located in the Parco Nazionale Dolomiti; canyoning has been tolerated up to now, but it should not be attempted to meet the rangers. The leadership of the A.I.C. has been negotiating for some time with the National Park Administration.

Retour: (traduction alternative)

At the exit or. left again up the path and return to the parking lot.

We heard that the canyon is doable. Some anchor points are old, but still functional. One traverse is "the most fun". But it's okay, everything is fine ♡

With the upper part a wonderful canyoning tour (traduction alternative)

I heard the canyon is doable and all anchors are intact

Description of the canyon changed. New parking lot, which is not so obvious opposite the ranger house and where you create less fuss. Coordinates of parking lot as well as entrances touched up to current conditions. Canyon is super nice. All stands ok. (traduction alternative)

When you just come out of Grigno, it is somehow to be expected that you will be slightly disappointed at the next stream. (traduction alternative)
