Résumé: (traduction alternative) Aquatic tour with beautiful parts but also many downclimb. The stream leads in early summer too much water for a safe walk.
Hydrologie:
Accès: (traduction alternative) Coming from Belluno on the SS51 over the high bridge over the Piave gorge, then turn right towards Sottocastello and follow the road until a T-junction at a large parking lot. Here follow the road downhill to the right and after about one KM turn right (sign Al Lago). Cross the top of the dam and at its exit turn right. Follow the road until the bridge over the Anfela. More or less rock fall parking after this bridge. Coming from the north, you can reach Sottocastello by turning right towards Cortina after the tunnel under Pieve di Cadore and then taking the first turning on the right. If you have two cars, you can drive up the forest road after the dam for a few meters and then park on the left (saving about 1 km of flat walking). Continue only with off-road vehicles (deep grooves in the ground), but as of 2022 there was a sign prohibiting driving.
Approche: (traduction alternative) From the dam up the forest road, after about 100-150m follow the trail to the left. After some time you meet again the forest road, follow this until you cross the Anfela. Then a short distance further uphill until a path on the right leads directly to the stream.
Tour: (traduction alternative) The canyon has definitely been improved since the Cwiki description below (new anchors , no more tree rappels) As of 2022. Old description: On the orographic right bank above the bridge rappel 8m from a tree, then immediately the first rappel hook on the right - a good way to check if the diameter of the ropes you brought is thin enough. After a short walking passages then an aquatic 25m rappel through the water steel from a tree with a sling on the left. Downclimb until you reach a low gorge, the anchor for the 10m rappel is hidden in the crevice on the left. In the gorge several downclimbs and a 5m rappel from a hidden anchor on the right above the break-off edge. At the exit of this gorge you could climb very steeply to the left back to the forest road. after a longer walk and abseil the most beautiful part of the tour begins. Two 3m slides lead into a beautifully washed out gorge in which many small slides and 8 rappel passages up to 25m are hidden. Then another 4m jump (the only one of the tour), two rappel passages and some tricky downclimb passages in the waterfall before you reach an arduous 30min downclimb section in the open terrain. The canyon ends abruptly directly in the reservoir.
Retour: (traduction alternative) Between the two bridges up to the road

Automatisch importiert von Descente-Canyon.com für Canyon Anfela Some more bolts with this Waterflow would be nice. It's the second time we did the canyon, but it's not so nice because the walking sections after the beginning and at the end. The beginning is great, but then a lot of stream walking until the interesting part. Also at the end 25 minutes of stream walking and block climbing. The gorge could stand a few more stands, especially at this water level. Unfortunately quite slippery. (traduction alternative)
