Sintesi: (traduzione alternativa) Steep tour with several, higher rappel. Worthwhile after rains
Idrologia:
Accesso: (traduzione alternativa) Exit: From Kransjka Gora follow road 201 in the direction of Jesenice. After Gozd Martuljek you pass two signposted parking lots. About 300m after the second parking lot you can park just before the bridge over the mostly dry stream. \n\nEntrance: Follow the road for about 700m, then turn left onto a sand road. Follow this sand road over a hairpin bend, then park just before an overgrown forest road on the right. Space for 3 cars.
Avvicinamento: (traduzione alternativa) Follow the overgrown forest path to its exit, then continue along the cross-cutting path. This path crosses exposed in places but always clearly visible until above the large waterfall. Cross the stream and stay above the rock walls along indistinct tracks until you reach a flat saddle where you find a clear transverse path. Follow this path to the right to the streambed.\n\nIntermediate entry. Just before you cross the Strmi ditch for the first time, you can also climb to the right over a largely pathless ridge until you can cross back to the streambed on the left. You reach the canyon after the first 3 rappels.

Normally this is a dry gorge and only intended as a canyon tour after rainfall. We walked the canyon with outdoor equipment when there was little water. Only splashing water and no lake to swim in. The main waterfall at the end was dry. All anchors in good condition, 2 tree abseils, 1 block abseil, didn't find an anchor point. We had the drill with us, but it wasn't needed. I think this canyon is great even when it's almost dry. (traduzione alternativa)
